

Palace Brothers

Born of or around the river, in or about Louisville, ~~sp~~ or spotted with family eyes on some sole venture away and reeled in with nature's resistance to change working against energy of the invented sort, all the Pa Palace Brothers of whenever have ate from the same ~~plate~~ plate and drove in or out of town with concern, and with a smell. Slabs pushed together in ~~in~~ January, seams caulked with William's words, reverberant tremors molded by Grant into the tunes intended, with aims to entertain, to draw away, to re-arm. "There is No-one to Take Care of You" results, but is blown off the ~~finger~~ fingers of the brothers and their sisters into other ~~in~~ hands and they go their own way, swimming, most likely, or asking on Sunday Morning that Saturday Night's gruesome leer be interpreted, and rightly so, as an awed and reverent smile, or even as curved bacon to be served as strength this morning; retirement is aways away and the phone keeps ringing. the phone answered, desires ~~xxxx~~ translated, every one or other must be pulled from the beds or the water or the work in which they live by choice, some other state even for each other's benefit pulled back to say, here is the rent bill for what's before and our estimate on what today will cost, wa ch your back, see those clouds, yes she says you're cuse. It was July when the single occurred, it was January when the record came on, and here come more months with an inherent desire to co-operate; the boys will hit the road.
